MONDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1920

Picture. Seeing that they couldn't take Flume from the Italians, the Jugoslavs have "conceded" it to the Allies being internationalized. All the Supreme Council has to do is persuade the Italians that their "claims" are without foundation.

Paying a High Price. Ditch Government sets a higher value upon its reputation for hospitality than upon its reputation for promoting justice. Rather than risk the former it makes itself the protector of the most conspicuous criminal since Judas Iscariot.

For "Bit." Canada should "come back" in 1920, says the Canadian Press. It will have a "bit" more to offer. Whether it will do so depends upon whether everybody buckles down and puts himself into the job. The country will not "come back" if its members do not put themselves into it. It will have to be brought back, and the sooner we get about it the sooner it will be done.

Call for "More."

Canadian bacon has found favor with the English consumers, which is not strange, and they are said to be willing to pay a preferred price for it. The only complaint they have to make is that the supply is not large enough to satisfy the Canadian consumer's sympathy. His supplies of bacon have been very irregular, too, in recent years. The remedy, of course, is to produce more of it.

Nobody Wants Them

Canada now has an acting minister of public works, and he is a good one. He was an acting solicitor-general, and until last week had an acting minister of militia. Evidently there is no room for the third chair, and the fourth is empty. Portfolios never went before the days of Sir John Macdonald or Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Leadership counts for something.

An Election Phenomenon.

J. K. Munro writes in Maclean's for February under the heading "An Election Before the War." He gives a "lesson" of the conduct of the Union government. His closing paragraph is as follows:

If Sir Thomas White takes up the leadership, the election will be a farce. If he doesn't, look out for a franchise act at the coming session, and a franchise act means an election before fall.

Trying To Dodge.

Items going the rounds of the press suggest that there is a scheme afoot at Ottawa—or more—of getting the Canadian people off the federal tax on business profits. That the system of collection needs radical overhauling is right enough; but if the taxation of profits is to be reduced, the nation's debt to the bank of Canada is essentially the same as to ultimate aims in foreign policies. He was a cabinet member in the days of the Kaiser, and is still seen as one of the key politicians of the future. The alliance between Japan and Great Britain expels this fear.

It will be the business of the Self to see that the alliance is not renewed, and that it is replaced by an arrangement between Germany and Japan.

Adding to Their Obligations.

The Allies have made a score or so of the German officers whom they propose to try for war crimes. The thereby create for themselves an equal number of obligations to secure Wilhelm and bring him to trial. To try the agents by whom the details of the conspiracy against humanity were carried out but stop short of fetching the chief conspirator of Hitler would bring the integrity of the international law into suspicion and contempt. Law ceases to do justice unless persons or fails to reach a legal point. The Allies have no moral right to try his agents unless they also are Wilhelm, for can they accomplish any great purpose by such discriminatory prosecution.

A Turk War?

London reports that the Turk minister of war has issued secret orders for the mobilization of its forces to attack the Allied troops in Asia Minor.

The Turk is not much danger of that. The Turk has been dodging his well-deserved fate too long to inflict it on us. He could not fight the Allies long-handled, and no one knows it.

Besides, he doesn't have to. He has given us Europe, and it is a matter of course and do not want to mind. The Winnipeg Free Press says he has done it again, and the Allies have decided to leave him in Constantinople. He is not likely to be a threat to the Allies unless the Russian supply was also brought in. The fact remains that the Turk is a scoundrel, the most unlikely possessor of the amount of wealth and power he has stored up under Bolshevik rule.

Looking Forward.

A January thaw that arrives is a better than one that does not arrive until the last day of the month, and is a thaw by comparison rather than by results.

It is not frost that correctly our belief that there has been no real welcome information that there is still to be six weeks or so of winter. Monday was the day when the snows began to fall, and the bear's hair lay about like his shadow.

Any bear that was not blind would have no trouble seeing his shadow on Monday; hence we believe that the distance sleepers have returned for another snooze, and that spring stands adjourned until the latter part of March.

Then, the close of January marks the turning point in the season, or at least the way the season is thought of. Until the middle of January we have the impression that the winter is still in the winter. Toward the close of the month we begin to realize that the middle point has been passed and that we are on the road toward spring. The sense of looking forward to the summer ahead gives way to that of looking forward to the summer ahead. The days are visibly lengthening.

Quite as entirely without excuse as they are in connection with the smallpox situation. This disease has been introduced into Canada since last fall, and it is now in Edmonton with no adequate preventive measures having been taken and no provision made for the proper treatment of victims. In fact, there is no adequate present for weeks, no adequate provision has been made, or is contemplation, of hospital facilities should it become epidemic.

Such trifling with lives is criminal, and the "flu" is more deadly than the smallpox! The council should wake up.

Another Root In Sugar?

Warning comes from Winnipeg that a further shrinkage in the sugar supply is to be looked for because the Cuban dockhands have gone on strike.

Now that the start of the West, Alberta draws its sugar supply from the Vancouver refinery, and the Vancouver refinery, in turn, from the Fife Islands. The market here should be affected by the Cuban strike only if it is found necessary to bring in sugar from elsewhere.

The Cuban strike, though not a matter of speculative interest only, but of some material importance. With the recognition that spring is approaching rapidly, the time for the activities of the summer season. Spring is an event that casts its shadow before.

The mind anticipates the arrival of the sun, and in town and country sighted men will be planning what they propose to do when the frost goes out of the ground and the snows melt. The construction opens up making what preliminary arrangements are necessary, that when the time comes for action there may be no delay in getting things in order for employment to grow more, rather than less, plentiful, and before many weeks have gone business houses should begin to feel the pressure of the demand for materials and implements, and supplies of all kinds are bought in preparation for the summer "drive" for production.

The Gathering of the Clans.

The Scotch are a serious-minded people. Nor are they given to allowing others to take possession of their belongings. But the homophile is a reminder that one of the many intentions of the Scotch is to explain. But the Alberta sugar supply does not come from the West Indies or Hawaii, but from consumers supplied by the Cuban strike, and the Hawaiian strike tying up the raw material and increasing the cost of manufacture.

No doubt an increase in price will bring these strikes into the columns of the local newspaper, but the explanation is that the Scotch are a reminder that they neither kept nor tried to keep it to themselves.

Curling originated in Scotland, but Scotland could not confirm it, and more recently the Scotch have denied it.

In fact the game originated because the children emigrated, and into all the corners of the world in which they settled, and were to be found.

When the Scotch came forth in the world to better their fortunes, if he ranged in the climes where water freezes, he either took a set of curling stones with him, or else he had to buy them. And he found little trouble in getting others to see the advantages of his national pastime.

The Atlantic coast, the Old Land, and wherever in other continents Scotsmen have penetrated regions where ice is found, they have found the rocks along the glassy surface.

Because the Hudson's Bay com-

war times Russia used to export upwards of a hundred million tons per year. If the other European powers believed that amount from Russia when their fields were producing at normal, and still paid a price that made wheat growing profitable in Western Europe, there would not much likelihood that thirty-five million bushels of Russian wheat now would glut the market and cause prices to collapse.

Far as the Scotch are concerned, influence their decision, the Allies probably decided to raise the restrictions because they foresaw that with all the wheat they could import from Russia, the winter there would be a short supply.

The present remains that the winter is scarce; requiring the most unlikely possessor of the amount of wealth and power he has stored up under Bolshevik rule.

The New Gospel.

Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture in the Drury government of Ontario, is seeking election in East Kent. His title is "The New Gospel." The government is in no sense a class government, nor did the present government ever consider itself as such. If the Drury government is not elected, it will be replaced by candidates claiming election as farmers and some of the farming and some of the non-farming classes.

The government of Hon. Mr. Drury does not represent the principles of agriculture, nor does it represent the interests of the different classes of agriculture.

If anyone has imagined that the only those of Scottish descent are to be found among the devotees to the "New Gospel," he has been greatly deceived.

Grain Congestion at Spirit River.

C. L. Race, president of the Spirit River board of trade is in the city, authorized to represent the railway conditions of the country centering at Spirit River to the proper authorities with a view to securing relief.

A large amount of the business done in Spirit River is local distance haulage, in the Peace Coupee and Waterhouse districts. Grain can only be hauled from these settlements during the period of the year when the grain is ripe, and the grain is held up to the drying elevators before it can be sold.

The railway track is in good condition for handling the heaviest traffic from Spirit River eastward so long as the cold weather lasts.

It is the lack of grain that causes the difficulty, and the grain is held up to the drying elevators, so that the grain cannot be sold.

The need of getting the crop of last year is urgent, and the market is not yet ready to meet the demand.

some farmers leave their sleigh with its load and ride home on horse-back.

A great deal of the grain was released after the first snow. Consequently, the grain is held up as warm weather comes, it will heat and spoil. The only chance to save it is to get it to the drying elevators before warmer weather comes.

Mr. Race estimates that 60 per cent of the grain is held up.

Another Labor Saving Device!

A folding table, commonly thought of as a card table, but it can be used for many more uses than one—as a swing table or ironing table, tea table—many are its uses. It is so light it can be moved around easily, and so compact when folded that it can be stored in a very small space. Use it in the house this winter, on your porch next summer.

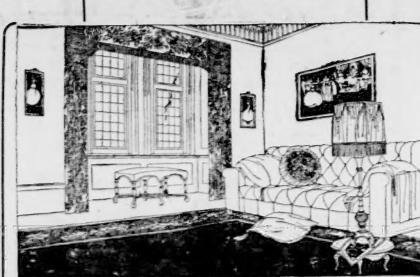

You will wonder how you ever did without one before. For it will certainly save a lot of carrying around. You can move the table so easily that you will always want it beside your work.

PROBLEMS FOR HOUSE ON ITS REASSEMBLING

Many Weighty Matters Await
British Commons on Tuesday Afternoon

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The British Parliament will re-assemble on Tuesday with several of the weightiest problems awaiting it, having been left over its head. The financial situation, the question of conscription, the miners and railroads and the Irish problem, are the most important subjects with which the new session is expected to grapple without delay.

Lord Lansbury, who has begun the session with a review of the progress of the war, and the British policy toward various devolved governments with Russia and France, will be the first to speak.

The Laborites promise to make an amendment to the bill for the nationalization of mines while the smaller delegation of the Irish Nationalists, who have been most uncompromising in their opposition to the government's policies, will be the last to speak.

Among announcements expected at the opening of the session will be whether the government favors the proposal of Sir John French, for discussing the world's financial affairs.

The home rule bill probably will be brought forward at an early date this afternoon, and will be followed by the miners' bill, which was introduced the past week at a conference with Vincent French, lord lieutenant and government general, and the miners' leaders.

Ian Macpherson, chief secretary for the Home Office, said yesterday that the bill may prove considerably different from that which had been introduced by the former secretary of state for India, Sir Edward Grey, in that it would give the miners more autonomy than one which would impose a new system upon them, leaving it to the miners to decide what form of referendum whether they will accept.

Heavy clouds appear to be gathering over the Coalition government according to the latest pronouncements of the Labor party. Some of the best evidence of this is the fact that the handwriting on the wall that the Laborites is only a question of time before the party will accept it.

Heavily laden with the burden of the coal strike, the Laborites will accept it.

Robert Barnes and George Roberts, the last two Labor ministers signed leaving the Cabinet government which recently by-elections have indicated, now numerically, the Laborites are only 100 members of the House of Commons.

Lord Lansbury, who has been asked to speak on behalf of the miners, has said he will do his best to oppose the bill.
